NB: The audience is requested to remain standing until the procession has left the Hall.

GAUDEAMUS IGITUR

Let us live then, and be glad
While young life's before us!
After youthful pastime had,
After Old age hard and sad,
Earth will slumbe o'er us.

Brief is life, and brevity
Briefly shall be ended:
Death comes like whirlwind strong
Bears us with his blast long;
None shall be defended.

Live this University
Men that learning nourish!
Live each member of the same
Long live all that bear its name;
Let them ever flourish!

GAUDEAMUS IGITUR

Gaudeamus igitur, juvenes dum sumus (Rep)
Post jucundam juventutem, post molestam senectutem,
Nos habebit humus, nos habebit humus.

Vita nostra brevis est, brevi finietur (Rep)
Venit mors velociter, rapit nos atrociter,
Nemini parcetur, nemini parcetur.

Vita Academia, Vitat Professores, (Rep)
Vitat mebrum quodlibet, vivant membra wuaelibet,
Semper sint in flore, semper sint in

NATIONAL ANTHEM

Nkosi sikelel' iAfrika
Maluphakanyisw' uphondo lwayo,
Yizwa imithandazo yethu,
Nkosi sikelela, thina lusapho lwayo.
Morena boloka setjhaba sa heso,
O fedise dintwa le matshwenyeho,
O se boloke, O se boloke setjhaba sa heso,
Setjhaba sa South Afrika – South Afrika.

Uit die blou van onse hemel,
Uit die diepte van ons see,
Oor ons ewige gebergtes,
Waar die kranse antwoord gee,

Sounds the call to come together,
And united we shall stand,
Let us live and strive for freedom,
In South Africa our land.

Oluoyomi Abayomi Oduwobi studied the diverse approaches which writers of African descent employed to reconstruct the trans-Atlantic slave trade, with the focus on eight contemporary literary narratives. The selected texts were representative of the authors' different continents and shades of African ancestry. What was evident in the selection of writers, was the varying perspectives and literary strategies which they deployed to reconstruct the experiences of Africans who were transported as slaves to the Americas between the fifteenth and nineteenth centuries.

Using the theoretical frameworks of postcolonialism, postcolonial feminism and postmodern historiographic metafiction, the study evaluated the theoretical and practical importance of reconstructing a historical past in contemporary literary narratives as well as their counter-hegemonic proclivities. The study also examined how the selected writers deviated from the normative form of writing slave narratives, to make the trans-Atlantic slave trade and its engendered discourses on racism as well as the socio-economic realities of Africans in the diaspora relevant to the twenty-first century reader. An examination of the selected narratives for the thesis successfully contributed to the knowledge on literary scholarship and exposed aspects of the trans-Atlantic slave trade that were previously unexplored. It also directed attention to the contemporary discourses of appraising the interdisciplinary links between literature and other fields such as history, law, as well as cultural and diasporic studies. This PhD research, therefore, contributes significantly to the research on African diasporic literary studies as evidenced in academic papers already being published from it in peer-reviewed journals.

CONFERMENT OF HONORARY DOCTORATE

SCHOOL OF HUMAN AND SOCIAL SCIENCES

HERBERT MOKADI LENTSOANE

Herbert Mokadi Lentsoane was born on 27 November 1946 in GaMarishane, Sekhukhune area, Limpopo Province, South Africa. He received his primary education at Marishane Community School and his secondary education at Bopedi-Bapedi Secondary School and Orlando High School respectively. He holds a Bachelor of Arts, a Higher Education Diploma, a Bachelor of Arts (Honours) and a Master of Arts.

Mr. Lentoane taught at Orlando secondary school as a teacher, at Lebowakgomo as a teacher and acting vice-principal, and served at Tshehlo secondary school as a principal. He went on to work at Mokopane College of Education as a Head of Department and Acting Vice-Rector, and at the then University of the North as a Lecturer until his early retirement in 2001.

Lentsoane has done a lot for the development of the Northern Sotho language, which is one of the languages offered at this institution. His writing skills already emerged when he attended Bopedi- Bapedi secondary school, where writing compositions was taught by the legendary Mr. J. R. Masemola. The publication of some of his best compositions in a school magazine called Motswalle wa Bana (Wamba), edited by the late C. P. Senyatsi, encouraged him to write more. Further publications in Tšwelopele, where his first poem, Sekolo se se phagamego sa Bopedi-Bapedi appeared, encouraged him to write more poems. His late grandmother, Elsina Makuntane Makgoba, who could not read and write, was a born poet whose expertise of reciting traditional praise poems, instilled the love of writing in him.

His teacher in the then Forms IV and V, the late Bernard Mahulo Molaba, at Orlando High School, laid the foundation of his understanding of the theory of literature. Further reading of Sesotho sa Leboa literature at the Universities of Limpopo and UNISA informed his own subsequent writing career. Living in Johannesburg, and in Diepkloof, in particular during the apartheid era, sharpened his observation of the horrors of apartheid especially in terms of the Group Areas Act which controlled the movement of Blacks from rural to urban areas. The question of the pass system and migratory labour had a marked influence on the writing of some of his poems in Mokgako.

He authored twelve and co-authored nineteen books, edited one and translated many others, including the Northern Sotho Bible.
